STRIKE.

should not be considered as a stumbling block in fighting for our just rights. The Empire of Russia, with all her resources, strength and population, was reduced to her present condition today because our defenders "stuck together," patiently and fearlessly.

"Victory can be won as long as we stick together fearlessly and patiently. Let us, however, respect the laws of the lands in which we live."

This is the gist of the statements made by Messrs. Makino, Negoro, Tasaka, Soga and Hashimoto at the mass meeting held under the auspices of the Japanese High Wage Association in the Asahi Theater on Maunaloa street last night.

The house was filled to its utmost capacity and many were compelled to stand outside of the hall, waiting to hear from those inside the house. The speakers, as usual, roasted the other Japanese newspapers for not taking part in trying to get higher wages for their fellow countrymen, who were working hard in the cane field. They particularly scored editor Sheba for encouraging and misleading the planters to stand pat, and not give in to the demands of the strikers. They called him "dog."

Makino Speaks.
"Our motto is to help those who are entitled to higher wages," said Makino, who presided over the meeting. He said that the planters, who were making plenty of money through the sweat of the brows of the Japanese, were not showing good spirit towards them. "These poor Japanese wake up very early in the morning and go out to work in the field with the idea of bringing profit to their employers," continued Makino. "But the trouble is, when the planters made money they ignored those who have helped bring money into their pockets."

"I certainly would blame the strikers today for bringing such action as they did had not the planters made money in the last few years. They claim that we, of the High Wage Association, were irresponsible parties to deal with them. Why not, then, play fair and consult some of the other Japanese. We are not making money in this fight. What we want to see is fair play."

In concluding, he told the audience to stand together in this undertaking. (Applause.)

Attorney Lightfoot then came forward and was introduced to the audience. He said among other things that the Japanese were justified in asking for higher wages, when the planters were making millions upon millions of money.

Tasaka Whips at Planters.
Tasaka, one of the writers for the Nippon Jiji, the organ of the High Wage Association, made a stirring speech. He said that the strikers were perfectly right in asking for higher wages from the planters. "To show the Russians," continued he, "our brothers fought fearlessly for our rights. They gained their point. Why? Because they stood together shoulder to shoulder."

"The planters today are not treating the Japanese field hands right. They are paying better wages to other nationalities and are holding down the wages of the Japanese because they are Japanese. This is what I call unjust." (Applause.)

Girl Editor.
Y. Soga, editor of the Nippon Jiji, was introduced as a girl editor, the announcement by Makino, the chairman, amused the audience. Soga, who bears the resemblance of a woman, stepped forward to address the audience.

He said that the strikers were taking a right course by asking the planters to raise their wages on basis equal to other field hands, regardless of race and nationality. Referring to the beginning and the ending of the Russo-Japan war, he told the audience that the only way to victory was to work together for common good, regardless of the greatness of the planters.

Actor Gives $300.
Hashimoto, an actor, stated that he was willing to donate about $300 for the maintenance of strikers. Besides that amount, he said, he was willing to do all he could for the good of the strikers, who were asking for higher wages.

Before concluding, he advised others to stand ready to come to the aid of the strikers, when they were moneyless and without food.

Negoro on Deck.
Negoro claimed that the strikers were making good, just and rightful demands. He said that the campaign was a fair one, in that the planters were not giving equal wages to the Japanese laborers, the same as other laborers of different nationalities were getting.

"What we want, said he, 'is equal privilege to all, and special privilege to none.' As long as the planters do not treat their men on equal basis, there is always a danger ahead. We hold that the laborers can be controlled by the planters, provided they were treated like men. But when they neglect that duty, the pillbox follows."

He said that the planters, who were intelligent, should show some respect for the Japanese laborers by giving them better wages.

The meeting came to an end shortly after midnight.

Fires At Ewa.
The labor situation at Ewa is shown in the following statement by E. D. Tenney, president of the company:

"During the greater part of yesterday and last night the laborers were holding meetings — the indication seems to be that their original plan of formulating demands, to be submitted to the management, and then returning to work on Monday, will be carried out. This despite the efforts of a rough element, resident on the kuleana in the Honolulu valley, who have, I understand, endeavored to the utmost extent to influence the laborers to refrain from returning to work."

"Last night at 12 o'clock there was a fire in Field No. 20 and later, at 2 a. m., in Field No. 11—both of these fires were put out promptly by the people living near. The area burned is insignificant—perhaps not more than an acre altogether. I am very doubtful if plantation laborers set these fires, although it is very significant to note that both of these fields are plantation fields; that is, not fields cultivated by contractors, and hence none of the laborers have any direct financial interest in them."

Honolulu Mill Starts.
There are now 1025 men at work at Alea plantation, in addition to skilled labor. The mill is in operation, grinding what cane has already been cut, and irrigating and planting is being carried on. No cutting is being done, however.

Five hundred and twenty laborers, including all of the Chinese, are now back at work. In addition, 505 of the men sent down from Honolulu this morning have been hired. Manager Ross stated this morning that he could have had a large number more today had he been able to make use of them, and that harvesting can be started at any time, should it be considered wise.

It is not the intention at present, however, to cut any more cane, there still being quite a quantity, unground, on hand. All of this is being handled in the mill and there will be no loss.

Men Good, Building Excrable

Hawaii has an excellent National Guard, so far as the personnel of the organization is concerned, but the armory facilities are very deficient, consisting of an old shed which does not protect from the weather and could be easily robbed. This is the gist of the report made by Major Dunning to the War Department as the result of his inspection of last February, and returned from Washington to Col. Jones.

An extract from the report of Major Dunning says:

Armory facilities are very deficient. The armory of Honolulu is an old shed which does not protect from the weather and could be easily robbed. General remarks as to physical appearance, character of men, zeal, efficiency and reliability of the command in domestic emergencies: The physical appearance is very good and a large majority especially robust. Character very good. Zeal excellent. Reliability certain. Efficiency good. The Colonel is very enthusiastic and a hard worker and the command shows improvement over last year's condition. At a review the regiment presented an admirable appearance. All officers are zealous.

Waikiki Money Is Paid

Sixty-seven thousand dollars, in the form of a check, was paid into the United States District Court today by Major Winslow, to be used in settling the claims of the Waikiki property owners whose land has been taken by the Federal Government, under condemnation proceedings, as a military reservation.

The legal work in this much-tangled transfer was done by United States District Attorney Breckons, who has been buying himself with it much of the time for several months past. This afternoon Mr. Breckons and Clerk Murphy of the Court went over in an automobile to the other side of the island, taking with them the necessary warrants and papers, to see Judge Dole and have them signed by him. The Judge is taking his vacation on that side of the island, where he has been for the past week or more.

NEW BLOCK TALKED

It was reported today that C. Bolte, agent for the Wey block, on the corner of King and Bishop streets, has arranged for the erection of a modern building in place of the wooden structure that has stood for many years. Mr. Bolte could not be reached to confirm or deny the report, but it seems probable as this is one of the most desirable locations in the business section of the city.

NEW EMPIRE OPENING.

With an audience of a few friends and newspaper men the New Empire Theatre was given a try-out last evening and everything ran as smooth as clockwork. The auditorium is brilliantly lighted and when the films go on the lights all go out but a few green-shaded ones which do not interfere with the pictures but gives the theatre a twilight effect. The entire building is of reinforced concrete with a concrete floor, the concrete work being done by John Walker. The carpenter work was furnished by W. G. Chalmers and is very tasty. The main entrance is on Hotel street where the 15 and 25-cent seats are sold, and the side entrance on Bethel street is for the 10-cent tickets. The new machine, the Mottograph, worked beautifully last evening, and the films were very entertaining.
